Peter Hohlbein graduated in law from the University of Applied Sciences for the Administration of Justice of North Rhine-Westphalia in Bad Münstereifel with a diploma as a court registrar, and started his career in 1982 as a senior judicial officer at various courts in North Rhine-Westphalia.

Between 1984 and 1991, he worked in the property sector in leading positions at the BAG Bankaktiengesellschaft in which he was responsible for various areas including property valuation, property liquidation and insolvency. In these functions he was able to broaden his knowledge of controlling and risk management including basic restructuring measures.

From 1991 to 2002, he worked in various staff functions and senior management positions at what is now TLG Immobilien AG, for example as head of the portfolio management department and as the Berlin-Brandenburg branch manager. He played a significant role in transforming the company from a service provider to one of the largest commercial letting agents in the federal states of eastern Germany and in giving it a fresh focus with a value-creating portfolio strategy. In doing so, he saw through the first major investment projects at TLG both in the residential and commercial property sectors.

Between 2002 and 2011, he founded BCIA, a controlling company of the federal state of Berlin for the identification and management of the property risks of the former Bankgesellschaft Berlin, and ran this company as its sole managing director. He was also CEO of the company BIH [Berlin Immobilien Holding]. Under his management, the ailing property and investment fund business of the Berlin banking group was hived off and successfully restructured and rehabilitated within BIH.

These responsibilities gave Peter Hohlbein extensive experience in the management of property companies and proven expertise in developing and achieving optimisation potential in property holdings and business operating procedures, in particular with regard to commercial and residential properties.

Since 2011, in his capacity as managing partner of Hohlbein & Cie. Consulting in Berlin, Peter Hohlbein has been advising executive and non-executive directors of real estate and service companies on strategy development and on how to optimise their business and results. Further areas of his consultancy work are M&A projects in the property sector and major investment projects and their financing. On the basis of his market and M&A expertise as well as his consultancy work, Peter Hohlbein has already held positions on the supervisory boards of property companies for several years.
